ty-eight dollars per month. In February, 1871, he entered the Oswego Normal and Training school, and three years later graduated at the head of his class. The following year he took a course of lectures in the medical department of the Michigan university. He served two years as principal of the Spencer academy. He started a business college at Freeport, Ills., and later was at the head of the Rock River university at Dixon, Ills. In 1879 he was superintendent of the Pittsfield (Ills.) public schools, where he remained for five years, and then went to Big Rapids, Mich. If elected he will be the first school teacher ever sent to congress from Michigan.

In the Third Michigan district the congressional candidates are Julius Cæsar Burrows, of Kalamazoo, and Daniel Strange, of Grand Ledge, the former the choice of the Republicans and the latter nominated both by the Democrats and Populists. Mr. Burrows is now serving his seventh term in the house and is widely known. Mr. Strange is a farmer. He was born in Eaton county, a few miles from where he now lives, on March 4, 1845. He received his early education in the country schools, later attended the Charlotte Union school, was a student in Olivet college the first year it opened (1859), attended the state normal school at Ypsiianti and finally graduated from the Michigan Agricultural school. He taught school at the age of sixteen, and continued teaching while pursuing his own studies. After graduating Mr. Strange taught school at Portland and afterward at Mason, and then became superintendent of agencies for a New York publishing house. He finally returned to the farm.

He was born at Hartford, in 1843, at the age of twelve years moved with his parents to Ohio, and a year later entered the Michigan state university as a student. He graduated from the law department in 1865, was admitted to the bar, and after a few months in Ohio located permanently in Charlotte. A year after his arrival he was elected county superintendent of schools. In 1869 he was elected justice of the peace the Eleventh Michigan district, lives in and served three years, was elected prosecuting attorney and served four educators in northern Michigan. John W. Northrop, Populist candidate in the Eighteenth Ohio district, is the mayor of the Quaker town of Salem. He is fifty years of age and a native of New York. His youth was spent on a farm. At the outbreak of the war he enlisted in the Seventy-sixth New York infantry and served two years. Soon after the close of the contest he established a reform paper at Parish, Oswego county, N. Y. In 1879 he went to Ohio and published The Buckeye Vidette at Bryan. He removed to Salem in 1888 and started The Daily News, continuing its publica-

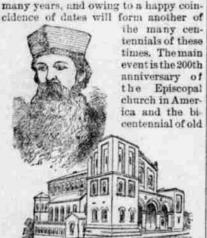

L. W. Hull, Republican candidate in the Thirteenth Ohio district, lives at Upper Sandusky. He is engaged in farming and stock raising. He was born in Delaware county, O., in 1854, taught school for awhile, and then turned his attention to farming. He is interested in several business enterprises, and is counted one of Wyandotte county's representative citizens.

C. E. Peoples, Democratic candidate in the Eleventh Ohio district, is a lawyer-editor of Pomeroy. He was born in Meigs county thirty-five years ago. After teaching school for a time he studied law and was admitted to the bar in 1888. The same year he purchased the Pome-roy Democrat, and continues its publication. He has served as prosecuting attorney of Meigs county.

THE EPISCOPALIANS.

Something About the Triennial Council at Baltimore

The triennial council of the Protestant Episcopal church in America is, with possibly one exception, the greatest religious gathering held in Baltimore for many years, and owing to a happy coin-

DR. HODGES AND ST. PAUL'S CHURCH. St. Paul's church, of which Rev. Dr. J. S. B. Hodges is rector. The church may be said to have had its beginning when Governor Fletcher, of New York, in 1692, persuaded the assembly to pass an act to make provision for the ministry in every county. The parish of St. Paul's, Baltimore, was founded in 1692. but the exact date is not known.

This triennial council is the governing body of the Anglican communion in America. Sixty-seven bishops constitute the upper house, and four clergymen and four laymen from each of the fifty-two dioceses make up the lower house. Probably the most widely known man in the lower house is Rev. Morgan Dix, D. C. L., rector of Trinity, New York. As round, square, hexagon, octagon, tri-angle, diamond, star, oval, half round, America, if not in the world, bears a etc. It can be fitted to bore any shape historic and acubly honored name, and more than sustains the exalted position by natural talent, his prominence is unquestioned.

Three great questions were before the council-a revision of the hymnal, a revision of the liturgy and furtherance of the plan for an organic union of Christians. Six years ago the house of bishops proposed as a basis for the union of English speaking Christians four propositions, which, in 1888, were adopted with slight changes by about 150 bishops of the Anglican communion assembled in conference at Lambeth, under the presidency of the archbishop of Canter-bury. These are the Holy Scriptures of the Old and New Testaments as the revealed will of God: the Nicene creed as the sufficient statement of the Christian faith; the two sacraments, baptism and the Supper of the Lord, ministered with the unvarying use of the words of institution and of the elements ordained by him, and the historic episcopate locally adapted in the method of its administration to the varying needs of the nations and peoples called by God into the unity of his church.

standing that he was much talked of for senator at the opening of 1891, but he has the Scotch devotion to a leader, and when questioned on the subject said:

"If Governor Hill will accept the position there are no other candidates, He is entitled to the place, for he has done the work and would make one of the best senators New York ever had." Governor Hill did accept, and Mc-Naughton was pleased. He is unmarried and a little past the prime of life, but so well preserved that he looks upon the world without austerity and expresses himself with the vivacity of

The Christian Endeavorers.

The platform of principles on which the wonderful growth of the Christian Endeavor society has been achieved is short and simple, its main points being personal devotion to Christ, the utmost loyalty of each Endeavorer to the church or denomination of his choice, interdenominational spiritual fellowship and always and everywhere work for the furtherance of the cause of Christ and for all things in society, government, education and business which tend to make men better. It was, however, inevitable from the start that this should become a great missionary organization, and such it practically is. As one delegate wittily put it, the more a man gives the more he will feel like working to see that his gift is effective.

High Priced Butter.

A report made to the home government by the British consul at Guatemala calls attention to the excellent field open to the dairy farmer in that republic. He says that very inferior butter is now sold there at one dollar a pound, and notwithstanding that there is any quantity of available land to be purchased at moderate prices in the neighborhood of the large cities, well adapted to stock rearing and dairy produce, not much attention is given to the industry, and comparatively little butter is manufactured.
